UNDERSTANDING PIGMENTATION & YOUR TREATMENT JOURNEY

WHAT IS PIGMENTATION?

Pigmentation occurs when melanin (the skin's natural pigment) is overproduced or unevenly distributed, leading to dark spots, discoloration, and an uneven skin tone.

WHY IS PIGMENTATION DIFFICULT TO TREAT?

- Genetic factors influence susceptibility and severity
- UV rays stimulate melanin production
- Inflammation triggers melanocyte overactivity
- Certain products can irritate the skin and worsen pigmentation
- Pigmentation takes time to fade and requires consistent care

YOUR TREATMENT JOURNEY – STEP BY STEP

- 1. SKIN ANALYSIS
We analyze your skin, identify the type and cause of pigmentation and create a customized plan.
- 2. CORRECTION
Advanced treatments work deep within the skin to reduce melanin production.
- 3. RENEWAL
Skin renews, cell turnover improves, and tone becomes more even.
- 4. IMPROVEMENT
Visible reduction of dark spots, improved glow and a brighter, more radiant skin.
- 5. MAINTENANCE
We help you maintain your results and prevent new pigment formation.

TARGETED TREATMENTS • PERSONALIZED CARE • VISIBLE RESULTS

TYPES OF PIGMENTATION

- SUN SPOTS
Caused by UV exposure (sun damage)
- MELASMA
Hormonal pigmentation, often on the face
- POST-INFLAMMATORY HYPERPIGMENTATION (PIH)
Occurs after acne, injury, irritation or inflammation
- AGE-RELATED PIGMENTATION
Natural pigmentation caused by aging
- UNEVEN SKIN TONE
Dull, blotchy or uneven skin complexion
